

A COLLECTION OF THE FINEST FISHING HOUSES IN IRELAND

FLY FISHING IN IRELAND AT ITS FINEST.

Welcome. There are things you dream about when planning a fishing holiday. The chance of great sport, a beautiful, natural environment and somewhere to stay that offers the finest advice, accommodation, food and facilities. For centuries, Ireland has offered the mightiest of sport to the visiting angler. A browse through the catch record books of the houses in this brochure is enough to quicken the heartbeat of any angler in search of a memorable holiday experience.

Without the scourge of industrial pollution, fishing in Ireland means clean, fresh air and gleaming, crystal water, as your concentration is only disturbed by a passing kingfisher, fox or another of nature's own observers. Unlike Scotland, you also have the freedom to enjoy Sunday fishing.

Located on the unspoilt western edge of Europe, Ireland receives public runs of the much prized Atlantic salmon, and our marvellous variety of lakes, rivers and streams also offer every test to the skill and ingenuity of the trout angler. And, as you struggle out of your waders at the close of day, it is nice to know you can look forward to an evening among your own, in an atmosphere that is relaxed, friendly and welcoming.

GREAT IN SO MANY WAYS.

The Great Fishing Houses of Ireland are twelve of the finest fishing establishments in Ireland. To be featured in this guide, they all have met the most stringent standards and have the premises, the fishing, the facilities and the staff to offer a truly complete angler's holiday.

Accommodation ranges from homely guesthouses, to sporting hotels, or country mansions. All are run by people with a keen, personal interest in the sport or who have enthusiastic fishing specialists on their staff.

Each house has access to superb fishing. Some offer private, exclusive waters, while others are located on the great free lakes of Ireland. Some restrict fishing to fly only while others permit a variety of methods. Good fishing requires the right conditions, but if nature is not being kind, you will find our atmosphere, warmth and cuisine more than compensate.

All of the Great Fishing Houses cater specifically (and, sometimes exclusively) for anglers. Expert advice is readily at hand from people who really know their waters. Benefit from the expertise of local ghillies, as they help make your holiday more enjoyable and more productive. In the Great Fishing Houses of Ireland the air of relaxation, the standard of cuisine and the quality of the company all combine to make a most pleasant end to the day. Rod rooms, drying room, freezers and even smokeries make sure both your tackle and your catch are treated with the care they deserve.

The Great Fishing Houses of Ireland. MAKING THE MOST OF THIS GUIDE.

You will be pleasantly surprised at the very reasonable cost of fishing holidays in Ireland, compared with other locations in Europe. This guide offers wonderful variety — so you can choose the Great Fishing House which best suits your fishing interests, your holiday style and your budget.

ACCOMMODATION

The prices shown are per person sharing a twin/double room. The range is from the cheapest room in low season to the most expensive in high season. Breakfast is included. Single occupancy supplements may also apply. Most houses offer private or en suite bathrooms, unless otherwise indicated.

DINNER

Some houses offer a full restaurant service with your party sitting at its own table. In others, everyone eats together at a large table, perhaps with a set menu. All Great Fishing Houses have a wine licence unless otherwise indicated.

SERVICE CHARGES AND TAXES

Prices quoted in this guide include all taxes. Some houses quote an additional service charge while others leave tipping to your discretion. Please check individual entries.

DEPOSITS AND CANCELLATIONS

Each house has its own policy on booking deposits and cancellations. Please enquire before making your reservation. All reservations are contracts between the reserving party and the individual house, Great Fishing Houses of Ireland accept no responsibility or liability for any dispute arising.

CREDIT CARDS

Most houses accept Visa and Mastercard. Some also accept American Express and Diners Club. Please check individual entries.

FISHING

Many of our houses offer fishing on private waters, for which there is a charge. In other houses the fishing is free, but there is a charge for boat hire. All fishing prices are per person per day and, if using a boat, are usually based on double occupancy. The price range shown is from low to high season. Ghillies are available for an extra charge and are sometimes shared by two or more anglers.

LICENCES

In Ireland, it is necessary to carry a State licence and fish tags if fishing for salmon or sea trout and these may be purchased at, or arranged by each house.

RESERVATIONS

Bookings should be made directly with the Great Fishing House of your choice, confirming by email, letter or fax. Because the houses featured in this guide are the premier locations, they are frequently booked out well in advance and you should make your enquiries as early as possible.

While rates quoted for both accommodation and fishing are per day, most establishments offer weekly packages, which we highly recommend. They are not only a great value, but also allow you time to experience the variety of waters more fully and a weekly package gives you a real chance to soak up the atmosphere and character of the house.

The fishing on Lough Corrib is mainly for wild brown trout but there are also ferox trout and salmon. The trout season begins in March with the famous Mayfly season providing great sport to the dap – a traditional Irish method – and the dry fly all day long from mid-May till August, depending on the hatch and the weather conditions. Gillies and boat hire can be arranged. The Cong River boasts one of the best runs of Atlantic salmon in Ireland with the run of wild salmon augmented by hatchery reared fish. The run begins in late March and there is a prolific run of grilse from late May, through July. Gillies can be arranged. SALMON: Mid March - 30th Sept

METHODS: Fly Fishing FISHING RATES: Full day from €300 for up to two people plus ghillie

Ashford Castle | CONG, CO MAYO |

The River Erriff, managed in conjunction with Aasleagh Lodge, is one of the finest salmon spate rivers in Ireland. Salmon start entering the river in April and the season extends to the end of September. The fishing is primarily for salmon, but there is also sea trout fishing on Tawnyard Lough. There are nine beats over eight miles of river and the fishing is rotated on a daily basis. It is best to bring both a single and a double-handed rod to match the varying water conditions. Fly fishing is the norm but other methods are allowed. Anglers are issued with good beat maps, and gillies can be arranged. SALMON: 17th Mar - 30th Sept TROUT: 1st June - 30th Sept for Sea Trout 15th Feb - 30th Sept for Brown Trout

The Ballynahinch River is two and a half miles long and drains a huge catchment of several lakes and smaller rivers. All the fish entering this system must first pass through the Ballynahinch Fishery. In addition to the river, the fishery extends up through Loughs Inagh, Derryclare, and Ballynahinch. Access to the river is excellent, as the road runs parallel to it for almost its entire length. Footbridges and stiles add to the ease of access. Casting is facilitated by some 72 casting piers along the river. There are seven salmon and four sea trout beats. Fly fishing is the method of choice and all tackle, flies and accessories are available for hire through reception or the fishery manager who, together with his ghillies, has an unequalled knowledge of the system and can give tuition. The beats are fished in strict rotation and catch records are readily available. For the less experienced, fly casting tutorials are available for half or full day with our qualified guides, please contact the hotel for more details. A day spent on the Ballynahinch Fishery in the heart of Connemara, ringed by the Twelve Bens mountain range is an experience never forgotten.

Camillaun Angling Centre and Guest House is located in the village of Oughterard on the western shore of Lough Corrib, one of the most important wild brown trout fisheries in Europe. The trout season extends from mid-February to 30th September and there is the added bonus of free fishing for salmon from mid-May. Angling methods include wet and dry fly fishing, dapping and trolling, a favourite method for the less experienced angler with the possibility of landing a big Corrib ferox trout. The angler's every need is taken care of. There are boats and outboards for hire, rod hire, fishing flies for sale and a fly tying desk where you can tie your own. Gillies can be arranged and there is also excellent advice on the best drifts and locations depending on the weather. The lodge is also very conveniently situated for the angler with an eye on a day's sea trout or salmon fishing on one of the famous Connemara fisheries.

The Delphi Fishery is one of the most sought-after salmon fisheries in Ireland. It consists of a river and two lakes and these are fished in rotation on a half-daily basis. The river is famous for the clarity of its water. This makes it fishable with the fly almost every day of the long season from February to September. The fishery operates a highly successful salmon hatchery. This has consistently trebled, or better, the natural runs of salmon, including the spring run. The spring fish start running even before the season opens and the grilse start running in June with the peak of that run in late July and August. It gets a small run of sea trout. The fishing is "fly only" and the favourite salmon fly is a Collie Dog. Advanced booking is strongly recommended.

The Lough Inagh Lodge fishery offers spring salmon fishing from March, grilse from July and sea trout and brown trout fishing on the lakes up to the end of September. It is located against a magnificent back-drop of mountain and ancient oak woodland in a singularly lovely valley. There are seven river beats at the fishery in addition to the lough fishing. They can provide some very interesting and challenging fishing for salmon, sea trout and brown trout especially for the angler who is prepared to be adventurous and flexible. Derryclare Butts offers the best prospect of a salmon in medium water in April. July is the premier month for sea trout and the Trout Pool and Green Point are two of the hotspots – sometimes by day and sometimes by night. Try a small dry fly by day and a couple of wetflies after darkness falls. Gillies and tackle hire are available by prior appointment. SALMON: May - September SEA TROUT: July - September, Catch & Release Only

The Longueville House fishery extends for over two miles on the Munster Blackwater, one of Ireland's finest salmon rivers. It is located four miles west of Mallow on the N72. The river gets a run of spring salmon in February/March; grilse in July and autumn fish in August and September. The river also holds an excellent stock of brown trout and has prolific seasonal fly hatches. The house also has access to a number of other beats on the river. In cold spring weather and high water, spinning is the most popular method. Later, fly fishing with a 14' or 15' rod comes into its own, and an intermediate or sinking tip line is the preferred option except in low water. In summer, brown trout fishing with a 9', 5 wt. rod and line can be very rewarding. Wading is the accepted practice for fishing the river. There is fishing tackle for hire and experienced guides who have extensive knowledge of the river. They should be booked in advance. SALMON: 1st Feb - 30th Sept SEA TROUT: 15th Feb - 30th Sept

The Rock House Fishery consists of about 7 miles at the head waters of the Owenduff River as well as wild brown trout fishing on several hill loughs and sea trout fishing on the Ballyveeney River. The Owenduff is one of west Mayo's exceptionally attractive and prolific salmon and sea trout fisheries. It is very much a spate river. The water in the Owenduff clears quickly after a spate. The spring salmon run peaks in March, the grilse begin running in May, while the sea trout run peaks in August and there is often a late run of salmon. The Ballyveeney River gets a good run of sea trout and they are about average size.

The Screebe Fishery in Connemara is situated at the top of Camus Bay and six miles due south from Maas Cross. It consists of an interconnecting series of sixteen loughs and, while one might be tempted to conclude it is a lough fishery, there are five bank beats, too, known locally as "Butts." With the exception of the River Beat, the others are short but on their day, they can be as productive of salmon as many a beat a mile long. The Salmon Pool at the top of Screebe Lake is one of the best salmon pools in the west of Ireland. The wild salmon run is augmented every year by the release of 50,000 smolts reared on the Screebe hatchery. The fishing gets a run of spring salmon, which are usually taken on the Salmon Pool and the grilse run peaks in July. For the angler seeking the solitude of a wilderness experience, there are few places to match Screebe for exploring hill lough full of wild brown trout.

Screebe House | CONNEMARA, ROSMUCK, GALWAY |

ACCOMMODATION

Located on the wild Atlantic coast of Ireland, this Victorian fishing lodge built in 1865 has long been famous for its hospitality, comfort and fine cuisine. This beautiful house boasts a large terrace and wonderful landscaped gardens offering a magnificent view over Camus Bay with its own original harbour. The house has been family owned for many years, which is reflected in the careful attention to detail; all of the rooms are individually furnished with exquisite antique interiors. It was originally built as a hunting/fishing lodge by the Berridge family (Ballinahinch Estate) in 1865, although a house stood on this site since 1847.

Screeb House is located in an enchanting natural setting in the Connemara region, overlooking an inlet from the Atlantic Ocean and surrounded by countless lakes, rivers, imposing mountains, moors and forests. In 2010 the house was thoroughly renovated and brought back to its former Victorian glory. Screebe presents luxury accommodation with sumptuous comfort. With six double rooms, one twin and one single – all with en-suite – it offers sleeping accommodation for fifteen people, plus a two twin bedroom apartment. The house has a landscaped garden, which can be used for receptions, celebrations, conferences etc.
